Senior Environmental Protection Officer

Cranbrook, BC

Care for the environment as part of an innovative and professional team

The Environmental Protection Division implements the environmental management programs developed under the authority of the Environmental Management Act (EMA).

As the Senior Environmental Protection Officer, you will leverage your expertise as an environmental engineering specialist to provide authoritative and professional advice on the EMA and on the management of industrial, municipal, agricultural, point and non-point source wastes and hazardous materials.

You will also lead regional and area-based environmental protection planning as you develop systematic approaches, policies and regulations to meeting your goals.

As our ideal candidate, you have strong team-building, organization, negotiation and conflict resolution skills as well as the strong written and verbal communication capabilities that will be key to your success in this position. This is a high profile role for an independent, motivated individual seeking a dynamic role on a productive, professional team.

This position qualifies for a 4.4% Temporary Market Adjustment.
